

Book Title: Oh No, Narwhal!

Author: Rosie Greening

Illustrator: Lara Ede

Publisher: Make Believe Ideas

Cover and images downloaded from publisher website:

<https://www.makebelieveideas.co.uk/>

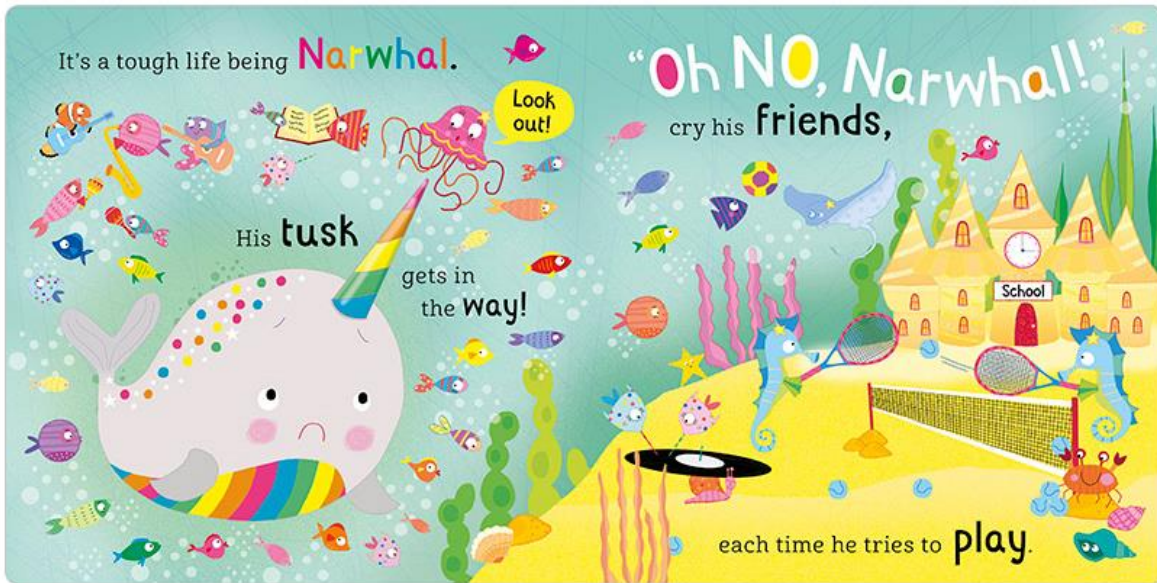

Protected by copyright

A Tradition of Excellence

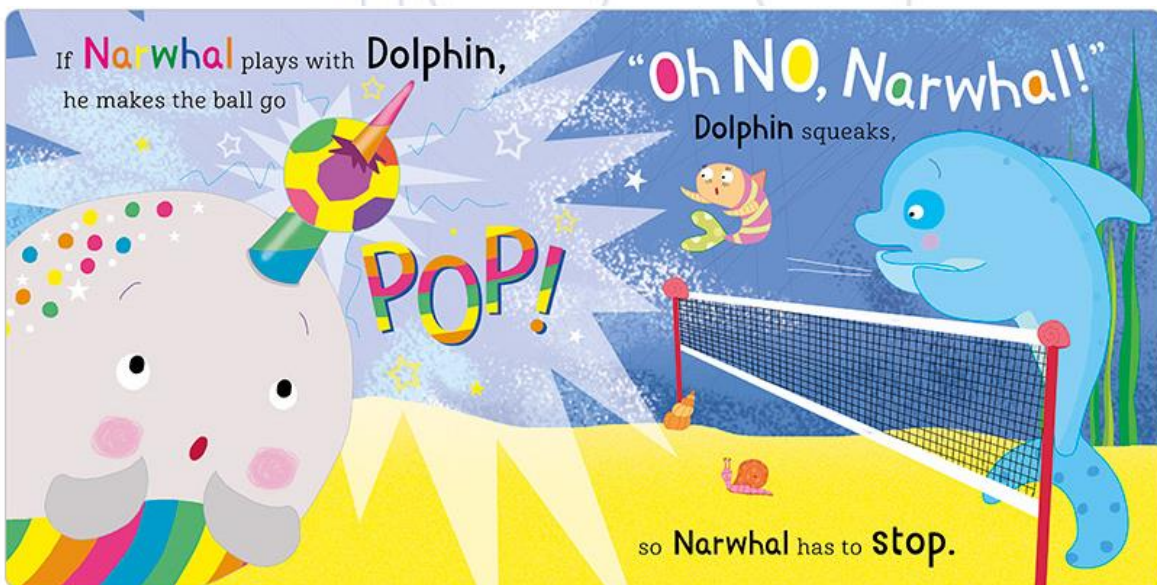

Since 1970

Book recommendation:

- Narwhal has a tusk that looks like a unicorn's horn.
- He likes to play with his friends, but his tusk always gets in the way.

- Whenever he tries to join them, they yell, "Look out!" or "Oh no, Narwhal!" and he has to stop.
- He pops the ball when playing with Dolphin.

- His tusk gives him away during a game of hide-and-seek with Turtle.
- He starts spinning when Crab plays music.
- At last, the group finds a game that Narwhal can surely join in.

- They decide to play ring toss onto Narwhal's tusk and cry, "Oh yes, Narwhal! This is the game for you!"

The reason why you recommend the book:

- The rhymes make reading this book entertaining and great fun for children.
- Learn new vocabulary about ocean-dwelling creatures.
- Shiny and shimmering book cover which is very eye-catching.
- Colourful and fantastic illustrations.
- Can ask children to focus on the facial expressions of the sea creatures which reflect different moods clearly: sad, surprised, worried, shy, happy etc.
- Includes many games that children like to play.
- Can also ask children to guess what kind of games they think Narwhal can join in, giving them the opportunity to get creative and think out of the box.
- Teaching children the importance of teamwork, friendship and having fun together!

A Tradition of Excellence
Since 1970

Writer: Mr. Rashid Lui

Lui Kaylee Suet Ying (Lower Pink) (2021-2022)