

Book Title : I Can Be an Astronaut

Author : Kathryn Jewitt and Spencer Wilson

Publisher : Walker Books

Story Content:

Have you ever gazed up at the night sky, mesmerised by the twinkling stars, and wondered what it would be like to float among them? 'I Can Be an Astronaut' invites you on an exhilarating journey beyond the confines of our planet, where the mysteries of the universe await. This book is designed for dreamers and explorers, encouraging young readers to envision themselves as astronauts embarking on thrilling adventures in space.

In these pages, you will discover the incredible training that prepares astronauts for their missions, from mastering the complexities of spacecraft to the physical challenges of living in zero gravity. Through captivating stories and vibrant illustrations, we will explore life aboard the International Space Station, the excitement of launching into orbit, and the awe of witnessing Earth from above.

I recommend this book because...

With its vibrant and captivating illustrations, coupled with accessible and engaging language, the book adeptly conveys the exhilarating essence of space travel while providing invaluable insights into the rigorous training and extraordinary experiences that astronauts undergo. Each page is filled with intriguing facts and tidbits that make learning about science and the mysteries of space not only educational but also tremendously enjoyable.

What truly distinguishes this book is its remarkable ability to encourage children to dream ambitiously and believe wholeheartedly in their potential. It serves as a powerful reminder that, with dedication and perseverance, the impossible can become possible. The narrative not only informs but also inspires, making it an excellent addition to any child's bookshelf or educational collection.

Whether your child is a budding scientist, an aspiring astronaut, or simply someone with a natural curiosity about the universe, 'I Can Be an Astronaut' is an absolute must-read. It will undoubtedly ignite their imagination and motivate them to reach for the stars, encouraging them to explore their own unique paths in life. This book is more than just a tale of space exploration; it is a gateway to understanding the limitless possibilities that await them in the universe and beyond!

Writer: Ms. Jessie Lam

Zhang Yee Huen Jeanie – (Nursery Yellow (a)) (2025-2026)

A Tradition of Excellence
Since 1970